OUR BIRTHDAY

This button is to be worn March 10, 1926, by all telephone people throughout the United States and Canada in commemoration of the 50th birthday of the telephone.

The first sentence was spoken over the telephone on March 10, 1876, by Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, its inventor.

Today there are 17,000,000 telephones connected with the Bell system and an army of more than half a million people engaged in building, maintaining, operating and managing the telephone systems throughout our country.

Wear It Today

MARCH 10, 1926

To the Men and Women in the Telephone Industry Everywhere in the Southern States:

ON March 10, 1876, the first message was transmitted over the telephone. From his laboratory on the top floor of an old house at 5 Exeter Place, Boston, Alexander Graham Bell telephoned to Thomas A. Watson, his assistant, in another room on the same floor, "Mr Watson, come here; I want you."

For fifty years now the telephone has brought into speaking communication countless numbers of people. Each year has seen an ever increasing record of telephone conversations, increasing business and

and in death, the telephone has rendered its priceless service. In truth it has made neighbors of the people of the nation.

Many of the hundreds of thousands of employees in the United States have expressed a desire to participate personally in some observance of the fiftieth anniversary of the telephone. In order that all may do so, an emblem in the form of a pin has been provided to be worn by telephone people everywhere upon the tenth of March. In this way and on this particular day, all can join in commemoration of the fiftieth birthday of the telephone.

BEN S. READ,
President,
Southern Group of Bell Telephone Companies.
